

Speaking as a 5 year flight attendant I am writing to ask you to continue the ban on cellphones in flight. The airplane is already a confined space for people and if cellphone usage is allowed the cabin will become noisy and people will get irritated with each other. In this time of heightened security it will take away from the flight attendants being able to defend the cabin against terrorists and save lives in emergencies because we will be constantly distracted and dealing with passengers complaining about their seat partner who is talking too loud on their phone. This is a safety and security issued and must not be allowed inflight.

Sincerely,

Brent Kaspar

Flight Attendant
